PUBLIC OUTREACH

In addition to disseminating research findings to the academic community, my communication strategy commits to reaching out to non-academic audiences.

First, I am interested in exchanging information and ideas with relevant actors from civil society and politics. Amongst others, I have co-organized events with the Swiss Embassy in Berlin, the Protestant Academy in Tutzing, and the Bundesnetzwerk Bürgerschaftliches Engagement BBE (the largest civil society network in Germany). In addition, I am also involved in research projects which closely collaborate with transdisciplinary partners from civil society (e.g., the Aktivzivil project or the Civil Society and Social Cohesion project).

Furthermore, the Center for Civil Society Research has its on advisory board with members from various civil society groups.

Second, I am regularly featured in the national and international media on topics related to my field of expertise (political conflict, civil society, protest and party politics). In the following a selection of interviews and articles related to (a) the European Elections and new pan-European movements (e.g., “Ein grosses Beben”, Süddeutsche Zeitung, 27.5.2019; “Neue politische Bewegungen”, Europamagazin ARD, 14.5.2019); (b) climate justice protests (e.g., “Die Konfliktverschärfung ist nichts Schlechtes”, Berliner Morgenpost, 13.10.2019, “Bisher waren die Aktionen wie kleine Nadelstiche”, Der Tagesspiegel, 11.10.2019, “Klima-Aktivisten in Berlin“, ZDF-Morgenmagazin, 07.10.2019); (c) the Corona restrictions on protest and civic engagement in the early phases of the pandemic (e.g., “Klimaaktivisten gehen neue Wege des Protests“, Deutschlandfunk, 24.04.2020; “Dürfen wir jetzt nicht mehr protestieren?“, perspective-daily, 09.04.2020; (d) the emerging anti-corona protests in Germany (e.g., Concern in Germany over radical elements at COVID restriction protest“, Euronews, 11.01.2022; “So haben wir den Hass gemessen“, Süddeutsche Zeitung, 10.05.2021; “Die große Weigerung“, Frankfurter Allgemeine Sonntagszeitung, 06.09.2020; “Landesweite Demonstrationen gegen Corona-Einschränkungen“, NDR Nordmagazin, 11.05.2020)
